

CIRCULAR.

The Rochester Institute of Practical Education was organized in May last. It is intended for extensive usefulness, and is in successful operation. Its students exceed forty, collected from four denominations of Christians, all equally privileged. It owes its origin to the late revivals of religion in the western part of the state. Many young men of piety and talents were anxious to prepare for the gospel ministry, and to support themselves by manual labor rather than burthen the church.

The Providence which called for an institution of learning determined its character. Its aims should be to secure to its members vigor of health, and strength of bodily constitution, to cherish the proper moral and religious habits, and to develop their minds in a direction adapted to their high destination, and to gird up the sterner and nobler energies of the soul to the power of great accomplishment. A few friends of religion and learning contributed sufficient to hire convenient buildings for one year, in a pleasant and healthful part of Rochester, and to furnish the different departments of labor, board, and instruction. The original founders and patrons have committed the entire management of the Institute to six Directors, chosen two yearly by the Presbytery of Rochester.

It is no part of the aim of this Institute to withdraw the public confidence from the colleges and institutions of our country, by substituting superficial, hurried, and partial instruction, but by using the most improved methods of instruction to secure an equivalent for a thorough Academic and Collegiate education. As an Institute of Practical Education it will receive students who are not pious, and aim to qualify them for the highest possible degree of usefulness in the practical duties of life: and whatever contributes to this end, either in moral, intellectual, or physical discipline, is to be made the matter of direct instruction. The founders of this Institution cherish the hope of aiding the cause of popular education and of national liberty, by uniting the advantages of a cultivated mind and religious principle, with the feelings and habits of a working population.

The internal regulations and discipline are adapted to young men of high aim, and such as are willing to be trained up as benefactors of mankind.

The department of labor is subordinate to

F order jy2

B

Lak

BK

Ex. S Plain
Com. dresser
Just re july

L
S Gloves

jy 9

M C Also jy23

O dian C Am Ameri and L jy26

D

A pr and pi tickets tal is $ call at jy26

FR

T pl cines, Ware, sale or prices.

Also of all k july

PR
$1
Extra
New Y

with the feelings and habits of a working population.

The internal regulations and discipline are adapted to young men of high aim, and such as are willing to be trained up as benefactors of mankind.

The department of labor is subordinate to higher objects. Experience shows that most of our students can maintain ten hours of intense study, with three hours of labor, better than if no labor were required; and that the punctuality and order connected with this department gives system to every thing connected with it: Students of ordinary mechanical skill, during the weeks they are learning their trade can nearly earn their board; and it is calculated that when the intended facilities are furnished, they will pay their expenses.

Applications for admission are to be made to the Rev. Gilbert Morgan, Principal of the Institute. In making selection from several applicants, preference will be given to those who are advanced in their studies; who can make their labor productive; who aim at a finished, uninterrupted education; who have health and energy to rise superior to discouragement.

The Institute must soon as possible be furnished with permanent convenient Buildings, a Farm, and Shops, with Apparatus for various Departments of Science, with a Library to which Donations in Books will be thankfully received; with permanent Professors and Teachers. All these are essential to a successful prosecution of the plan. For these objects funds are necessary. It is believed in no way can funds be applied more advantageously for building up the Redeemer's Kingdom. We commend the Institute to the blessing of God, and to the favorable consideration of the Christian community.

WM. WISNER,

President of the Board of Directors.

ROCHESTER, July 14, 1831.

Mother of Washington.—Wm. Allen, Esq. of New-York, the Treasurer of the committee acknowledges the receipt of $750, towards erecting a monument in memory of Mrs. Washington, the mother of the Father of his Country, on or of all July

PR
$
Extra New ten Six d

1 1 1
1
1 10 10 10 10

To Eight Forty July
NOV PR
chang
New-20, 6
Wed
10 D

1 1 1
1
1
1 10 10 10 10 18
Ti

ter's on h Man by c a, between Weed in of the Albany specimen of the when rogues fall

d by the Republi-the last presidenbove named were r of the Enquirer
They were both Democracy, but
ry. Weed, a vi-royal-arch mason, ding coalition, in ral candidate—

CIRCULAR.

The Rochester Institute of Practical Education was organized in May last. It is intended for extensive usefulness, and is in successful operation. Its students exceed forty, collected from four denominations of Christians, all equally privileged. It owes its origin to the late revivals of religion in the western part of the state. Many young men of piety and talents were anxious to prepare for the gospel ministry, and to support themselves by manual labor rather than burthen the church.

The Providence which called for an institution of learning determined its character. Its aims should be to secure to its members vigor of health, and strength of bodily constitution, to cherish the proper moral and religious habits, and to develop their minds in a direction adapted to their high destination, and to gird up the sterner and nobler energies of the soul to the power of great accomplishment. A few friends of religion and learning contributed sufficient to hire convenient buildings for one year, in a pleasant and healthful part of Rochester, and to furnish the different departments of labor, board, and instruction. The original founders and patrons have committed the entire management of the Institute to six Directors, chosen two yearly by the Presbytery of Rochester.

It is no part of the aim of this Institute to withdraw the public confidence from the colleges and institutions of our country, by substituting superficial, hurried and partial instruction, but by using the most improved methods of instruction to secure an equivalent for a thorough Academic and Collegiate education. As an Institute of Practical Education it will receive students who are not pious, and aim to qualify them for the highest possible degree of usefulness in the practical duties of life: and whatever contributes to this end, either in moral, intellectual, or physical discipline, is to be made the matter of direct instruction. The founders of this Institution cherish the hope of aiding the cause of popular education and of national liberty, by uniting the advantages of a cultivated mind and religious principle, with the feelings and habits of a working population.

The internal regulations and discipline are adapted to young men of high aim, and such as are willing to be trained up as benefactors of mankind.

The department of labor is subordinate to higher objects. Experience shows that most of our students can maintain ten hours of intense study, with three hours of labor, better than if no labor were required; and that the punctuality and order connected with this department gives system to every thing connected with it: Students of ordinary mechanical skill, during the weeks they are learning their trade can nearly earn their board; and it is calculated that when the intended facilities are furnished, they will pay their expenses.

Applications for admission are to be made to the Rev. Gilbert Morgan, Principal of the Institute. In making selection from several applicants, preference will be given to those who are advanced in their studies; who can make their labor productive; who aim at a finished, uninterrupted education; who have health and energy to rise superior to discouragement.

The Institute must soon as possible be furnished with permanent convenient Buildings, a Farm, and Shops, with Apparatus for various Departments of Science, with a Library to which Donations in Books will be thankfully received; with permanent Professors and Teachers. All these are essential to a successful prosecution of the plan. For these objects funds are necessary. It is believed in no way can funds be applied more advantageously for building up the Redeemer's Kingdom. We commend the Institute to the blessing of God, and to the favorable consideration of the Christian community.

WM WISNER

Wm. Wisner,
President of the Board of Directors.
Rochester, July 14, 1831.

Mother of Washington.—Wm. Allen, Esq. of New-York, the Treasurer of the committee ac-

F R sale a found containing 50 l order. It will be so jy23

B BLACK Palm black Italian
" crape d
" Italian
" Gro de
Desk. and col'd gro

Blk and green wa
Ex. Su. worsted bar
Plain brown Parasol
Com. and Ex. Su.
dresses. A full assort Just received at the July 25

LADIES' clouded Skirts, green and Gloves, &c.—None b

jy 9
METHODIST for sale at New C Also—A quantity
 jy 23— sale by H

OF Memoirs of an
by J. A. Jones, dian Camp."
American Anecdotes American, 2 vol. just and Library of iv26

BREWSTER
DRAWING of e on Wednesday 19 18

A prize of 100 dollars and paid this time.
tickets only $10, low total is $40,000!!! For call at No 19, Excha
jy26

FRESH DRUGS
THE subscriber has a supply of pure and genuine, Patent Medicines, Patent Medical Ware, &c. &c.—all of which he sells at wholesale or retail on his own prices.

Also—A full stock of all kinds, DYE W
July 23-artf

PRATT'S Office
$10,000. New-
Extra Class No. 20,
New York, on We ten number Lottery, Six drawn balls

1	Prize of	$40.00
1		10.00
1		6.00
1		4.10
1		3.00
1		2.00
10		1.00
10		.80
10		.60
10		.50
Tickets $10.		'H
Fifths $1 25.		Tic Fortune's Home, by is 19

NOVEL AND IN PRICE of Ticket $12 BREWS change-street, Roches
New-York Consolida
90, for 1831, draws i Wednesday, July 27
10 Darnay Ballots

1	Prize of	$40.00
1		10.00
1		6.00
1		4.10
1		3.00
1		2.00
10		1.00
10		.80
10		.60
10		.50

18,040 prizes, and Tickets and Pack
 ter's Lottery and Ex PLANO FOR

