

PUBLIC HOUSES.

Hamilton House.

This spacious building formerly known as the United States Hotel, is undergoing a thorough repair, from summit to base, which will rest it for one of the most commodious boarding houses in the city. The necessity for a genteel boarding home on a large scale has long been felt. And the undersigned has selected the above location on account of its airy rooms, and numerous advantages over the business localities of the city. The sickness so liable to overtake us in warm weather, demands a residence out of the vitiated air. Here families can find spacious suits of rooms, pure air, a fine yard, and a luxurions table, also an obliging host and hostess, who will spare no pains to render it pleasant and attractive to all who may favor them with their patronage.

The above house will be opened for the reception of boarders on Monday, May 20th, 1850.
